

The New First Critical Hours

Focusing on the clinical management of patients presenting to the Emergency Department

A revised programme building on feedback from faculty and delegates at previous Updates

organised by Infomed Research and Training on Wednesday 23 and Thursday 24 January 2019,
at Park Plaza County Hall Hotel,
1 Addington Street, London SE1 7RY

COURSE ADVISORS

Prof Tim Harris, Professor of Emergency Medicine
Prof Colin Robertson, Professor of Emergency Medicine, University of Edinburgh

About this Update

Highlights

- Practical focus on the more difficult aspects of Emergency, Acute and General Medicine in the first critical hours.
- A revised programme covering a range of relevant clinical topics selected on the basis of past delegates' feedback and a survey of dozens of emergency/acute medicine practitioners/experts.
- A new course format: every delegate attends every session, but the audience is divided into two groups, enabling greater discussion and interaction.
- A Faculty of experienced specialists in their fields, from different hospitals in the UK, who can pass their expert knowledge to front-line clinicians.
- Short interactive lectures followed by 30 minutes of case scenarios, discussion and Q&A.
- Contributes to developing effective team management for doctors from a variety of backgrounds who are actively delivering emergency and acute care.
- State of the Art lectures on Sedation and Shock in the ED.

Target audience

Aimed at Consultants, Registrars and Middle Grades in Emergency Medicine and Acute Medicine and Specialist Physicians with an Acute Medical 'take'.

What previous attendees have said

- Very broad recap/update and very relevant to my practice.
- New format – lecture and good clinical case scenarios, really good.
- Relevant topics covering common pitfalls and good take home messages.
- Separation into two groups encouraged interaction and enabled better engagement with presenter.
- Very useful, easy to follow and well-structured lectures.
- A course with interactive and passionate and engaging speakers.
- Excellent coverage, topics all relevant to ED/Acute medicine.
- Very good interactive case discussions and good time keeping.
- Definitely worth coming - practical discussions, clinical focus on difficult aspects.
- This course will improve my confidence in dealing with acute problems at the ED.
- Confirmed my current practice and provided me with updates to specific areas.
- I will take this and reinforce departmental teaching.
- Good quality presentations and good to have them on-line.
- Most speakers were excellent, entertaining, inspiring with a good ability to answer.
- Great update for me and better equipped to help juniors.
- Organisation and timings excellent.
- Well organised, excellent thought-provoking lectures.
- Friendly atmosphere and speakers leading to a comfortable learning environment.
- Topics well chosen - all relevant to day to day EM practice - evidence based medicine.
- I gathered quite a few practice-changing learning points – happy.

Learning outcomes

By the end of the course, the attendee will have:

- a comprehensive understanding of current evidence-based best practice and emerging issues in a range of clinical areas highly relevant to the day-to-day practice of emergency and acute physicians;
- greater confidence in his/her clinical practice; and
- identified skills and knowledge gaps, if any, relevant to his/her practice, and clear ways by which these can be addressed.
