Dual Diagnosis

Implementing the NEW NICE Guidance

Monday 23 January 2017 De Vere West one, London

“We need to ensure people with mental health problems and drug dependency get the treatment they need” Professor Alan Maryon-Davis, Chair, Guideline Development Group, Severe mental illness and substance misuse (dual diagnosis) – community health and social care services, NICE, May 2016

“Adults and young people who have a severe mental illness and misuse substances (defined as having a dual diagnosis in this guideline) have some of the worst health, wellbeing and social outcomes. It is not clear how many people in the UK have a dual diagnosis because of several factors, including the fact that some people in this group do not use services or get relevant care.” Dual diagnosis: NICE guideline DRAFT (May 2016)

“Changes should be implemented as soon as possible” Dual diagnosis: NICE guideline DRAFT (May 2016)

National Guidance on ‘Severe mental illness and substance misuse (dual diagnosis) – community health and social care services’ was released in draft form by NICE in May 2016 and is due to be published in November 2016. Through national updates, extended sessions and practical case studies, this conference will look at improving the management of severe mental illness and substance misuse - Dual Diagnosis - and Implementing the NEW NICE Guidance in practice.
