Sepsis is a significant cause of death and disability in the UK. According to the UK Sepsis Trust, 37,000 people are estimated to die of sepsis each year.

Current evidence-based guidelines emphasise the need for good initial assessment and immediate treatment, but in busy hospital departments, these protocols are not always followed.

Sepsis: improving recognition and management is a CPD certified one day conference that will examine the challenges of identifying those at risk and provide practical advice on immediate management.

Who should attend?

Sepsis: improving recognition and management will be of particular interest to the following:

- Specialists in sepsis and infectious disease
- Critical care specialists
- Intensive care specialists
- Acute medicine physicians
- Emergency medicine physicians
- General physicians
- GPs
- Commissioning leads and managers
- Nurse specialists and practitioners
- All trainees in these disciplines
