About the Palliative Medicine and Supportive Oncology Symposium

The Palliative Medicine and Supportive Oncology Symposium focuses on providing an intensive multidisciplinary review of cutting-edge topics in the rapidly developing field of palliative medicine and supportive oncology. This year the Machaskee Lecture will feature Dr. Graeme Rocker speaking on "End of Life Care for COPD." Together, we will explore potential solutions to improve the quality of care of patients with chronic illnesses through palliative and supportive oncology therapies. We will examine improved therapeutic options in the hematology patient and the role of radiation in palliative medicine. Parallel workshops and sessions are being offered with a focus on supportive oncology and key palliative medicine topics: falls prevention and starting a home-based palliative medicine program.

Who Should Attend

Practitioners and health care professionals who seek to learn the latest developments in palliative medicine and supportive oncology, including hematologists/oncologists, family practice physicians, internal medicine physicians, physician assistants, advanced practice nurses, nurses, social workers, pharmacists and hospice care providers.

Objectives

After completing this activity, participants will be able to do the following:

- Improve management of advanced COPD including the role of opioids in this setting
- Develop a plan for discontinuing medications in the hospice setting
- Recognize new radiation techniques available for cancer patients
- Review geriatric topics including medication management and assessment in cancer
- Improve integration of Palliative Medicine in non-cancer disease states
- Identify the role of supportive care in hematologic malignancies
- Improve medical management of select symptoms
- Discuss administrative issues for palliative medicine and hospice programs
