Intent and Overview

This course is designed to cover the most recent advances in breast health screening and diagnosis including methods of detection, application of new technology, and benign disease and cancer management. The course content will highlight new developments in breast imaging and recommendations for screening. Common benign breast conditions and the evolving landscape of breast surgery will also be presented. Finally, recommendations for breast cancer prevention and managing survivors' symptoms, including lymphedema are included. Upon completion of the activity, learners from several disciplines should be able to discuss the latest breast cancer methods of detection, treatment, surveillance and research and describe how these advances can be applied to their practice.

Who Should Attend

This course is designed for physicians, nurses and other health care professionals practicing in the areas of Primary Care, Gynecology, Radiology and General Surgery.

Continuing Education Credit
