The Blood Conference - Melbourne 2018

2 Day Conference for All Nurses

Need for Program

Blood is essential to human life. However, disorders of the blood are common and manifest in a range of clinical settings. Blood and its components are a precious resource frequently administered by nurses, but this is not without risk. A conference that reviews our modern understanding of the physiology of the blood and evidence-based treatments of common haematological disorders is timely.

Purpose of Program

The purpose of this conference is to provide nurses with an evidence-based update on the role of blood, its components and haematological disorders, so as to improve patient outcomes.

Learning Outcomes

At the conclusion of this program it is expected that the participants will be able to:

- Clearly relate nursing practice to knowledge of the blood and apply this to improve patient outcomes
- Correlate the pathophysiology of a number of blood disorders to appraise the appropriateness of modern treatments
- Describe how certain medicines can affect the blood and how nursing actions can minimise risk to improve patient outcomes
- Implement evidence-based nursing strategies to reduce the incidence of iatrogenic venous thromboembolism
