This education is designed for gastroenterologists and residents/fellows in training, GI nurses, physician assistants and nurse practitioners. By participating, learners should be able to:

- Identify important current developments in the diagnosis and treatment of disease states related to the fields of gastroenterology, hepatology and endoscopy.
- Discuss and review concepts and controversies as they pertain to the efficient and appropriate use of resources in gastroenterology.
- Manage difficult and complex disorders based on the most current knowledge obtained from recognized experts in those fields.
- Develop strategies to apply the concepts of value based gastroenterology
