Information Governance for Clinical Research Data

Complying with the new law:
strategic options and data handling guidance

Designed for public-sector Research and Development Units

Data protection legislation will change on 25 May 2018 and this new law specifically allows additional uses of data for health research purposes that are not permitted under the current law. This is an exciting change, but comes with strings attached and warnings.

An accurate reflection of the latest changes

This interactive and instructive workshop will contain the most up to date information in the field. The programme content will be developed to reflect the latest changes in the law and all attendees will be asked to complete, in advance, a questionnaire laying out their needs. The workshop will positively encourage challenge and debate.

Tackle your information governance challenges

David Stone, Managing Director, Kaleidoscope Consultants, has been described as a "very knowledgeable speaker" and is an excellent facilitator, enabling attendees to learn from the cutting-edge agenda as well as identifying with other Research and Development Units.

Event Timing:

Registration 9.00 – Start 9.30 – Close 4.00
