2026: Restoring Neurological Function

Overview

This educational activity will review and analyze the most current developments in clinical practice and relevant research. Experts will present their analysis of the most recent evidence on the treatment and management of movement disorders, headache and chronic pain.

Target Audience

Neurologists, neurosurgeons, physiatrists, primary care physicians, psychiatrists, internal medicine physicians, physician assistants, residents, fellows, nurses, nurse practitioners, physical therapists, occupational therapists and allied health professionals.

Learning Objectives

After completing this educational activity, participants will be able to do the following:

- Summarize the research and therapeutic advances in post-traumatic headache, neurologic implications of sleep disorders, and pediatric headaches.
- Review recent advances in the diagnosis and treatment of vestibular disorders.
- Analyze the clinical implications of current research findings on movement disorders, especially for genetics, diagnostics, and psychiatric comorbidities.
- Describe the recent advances in technologies to restore neurological function and their implications for clinical practice.
- Critically review the clinical trial evidence supporting new and innovative therapeutics for neurologic disorders.
- Summarize the most relevant advances in functional neurosurgery technologies and describe their optimal use in clinical practice.
