A Practical Guide to Advancing

IV Therapy

Including improving quality and safety through effective IV Therapy at home (OPAT)

Friday 23 November 2018 De Vere West One Conference Centre, London

This one day National Summit focuses on advancing IV Therapy including ensuring adherence to National Standards for Infusion Therapy and delivering practice to meet the CQC Key Lines of Enquiry for Safe, Effective, Caring and Responsive IV infusion therapy. The conference will focus on improving quality and safety of both inpatient IV Therapy and delivering effective IV therapy at home (OPAT).

The conference will provide an opportunity to:

- Network with colleagues who are working to improve IV Therapy
- Learn from outstanding practice in the delivery of effective IV Therapy
- Understand the CQC Key Lines of Enquiry for Safe, Effective, Caring and Responsive IV infusion therapy
- Reflect on national developments and ensuring adherence to the revised RCN Guideline and NICE Quality standard
- Understand the patient experience of OPAT and the implications for your service
- Improving the safety of Peripheral IV Cannula
- Improve the way frontline staff are trained and challenged with regard to poor practice
- Develop your skills in effective surveillance practice and competency assessment
- Understand and reduce infusion related infection
- Identify key strategies for developing effective OPAT services
- Ensure you are up to date with the latest innovations, developments and research
- Develop your skills in managing complications and incident investigation
- Self assess and reflect on your own practice
- Gain cpd accreditation points contributing to professional development and revalidation evidence

“Many patients admitted to hospital or in receipt of health care in the other settings, including their own homes, will become recipients of one or more infusion therapies at some stage. Total parenteral nutrition (TPN), cancer chemotherapy and other infusion therapies are increasingly delivered in community settings, reflecting the changing approach to care delivery/ commissioning and patient choice. These initiatives, alongside the development of outpatient and home delivered parenteral antimicrobial therapy (OHPAT), has led to the need for greater flexibility to meet patients, clinical and lifestyle needs.” RCN
