Preventing Surgical Complications Conference - Melbourne 2019

2 Days - For All Nurses

Need for Program

There are inherent risks associated with any surgical procedure. Preventing costly surgical complications, such as an unplanned return to theatre or an escalation of care to critical care environments, is a key priority after any procedure. The provision of care that is underpinned by best practice is known to reduce the likelihood of hospital-acquired complications. There is a timely need for nurses to gain key updates on how to detect and respond early to potential surgical complications if patient harm is to be minimised.

Purpose of Program

The purpose of this conference is to provide key updates on how to detect and manage potential surgical complications so as to reduce patient harm and improve patient safety.

Learning Outcomes

At the conclusion of this program it is expected that the participants will be able to:

- Clinicians will be better able to recognise high-risk individuals before harm occurs
- Sharpened assessment skills will assist clinicians to respond to signs of clinical deterioration more rapidly
- The pain and discomfort experienced by patients as a result of an unplanned return to there will be reduced
- Communication and collaboration across the surgical journey will support the provision of comprehensive care
