

The Kentucky Sleep Society presents....

18th Annual Sleep Medicine Conference

Plan to attend the 18th Annual Sleep Medicine Conference to learn from the experts in sleep medicine. We will examine sleep from both a clinical and an innovative perspective. The Technical Course will address current risk management issues experiences in the sleep center. The General Session will discuss methods to different sensor technologies for monitoring airflow, implantable therapy for treatment of obstructive sleep apnea, circadian rhythms, and updated information about innovative clinical topics such as pediatric insomnia, pediatric narcolepsy, and advances in cardiovascular impact on sleep.

We are excited to have national and regional experts to present on clinical topics of interest to all sleep medicine practitioners. We welcome , Andrew Gould MD, Clinical Researcher for ImThera, who will present a deeper look at the use of neurostimulation to treat OSA, and Michael Strunc, MD, Assistant Professor for Pediatrics with Eastern Virginia Medical School.

The Kentucky Sleep Society strives to provide continuing education credits at a reasonable cost, while you have the opportunity to network with your colleagues in sleep medicine. Register now to reserve your space at the 18th Annual Sleep Medicine Conference.
