Program Objectives

As a result of this program, participants should be able to:

1. Identify advantages to implementing an Acute Hip Fracture Pathway for the hospital, provider and patient.
2. Identify the indications for ECPR.
3. Critically evaluate signs and symptoms as measures of residual paralysis.
4. State risks of the rising cesarean delivery rate.
5. Identify causes, prevention and treatment of complications of lung isolation techniques including atelectasis.
6. Identify benefits of phenylephrine infusions and use of LMAs for cesarean deliveries.
7. Identify an anesthetic plan for the elderly patient to minimize delirium in the peri-anesthesia period.
8. Identify evidence for cardiovascular risk stratification prior to non-cardiac surgery.
9. List several pharmacologic therapies available to help manage pain when opioids are ineffective or contraindicated.
10. Identify one anticoagulant reversal strategy in the perioperative setting.
11. List advantages to the fascial plane blocks.
12. Identify appropriate answers to common anesthetic challenges.
