Steamboat Perinatal Conference

January 11-13, 2018

Course Description

Obstetrics is a dynamic specialty that regularly experiences the introduction of new knowledge and therapies. Now in its 33rd year, this meeting continues to address current and controversial topics in perinatal medicine, with a large draw of faculty active in both patient care and clinical research. Unique to this conference is the large number of faculty and the format which encourages discussion from the faculty and attendees during and following each lecture.

The wide variety of presentations encourages continued education to update clinicians and raise awareness for those involved in obstetric care. Practicing obstetricians, perinatologists, OB nurses, sonographers, nurse midwives and nurse practitioners are encouraged to attend.

The conference will help participants:

- ✓ Enhance medical knowledge
- ✓ Polish interpersonal and communication skills
- ✓ Strengthen professionalism
- ✓ Employ evidence-based practices
- ✓ Apply quality improvement initiatives

Course Objectives

The course objectives are to enhance clinician knowledge in the ever-changing area of complications associated with pregnancy and the fetus as well as promising new techniques and interventions for improving outcomes in this arena.
