

CME Information

This biennial, multidisciplinary, one-day conference will provide a clinical update on the biology, therapeutic modalities and medical management in patients with kidney and bladder (urothelial) cancers. Didactic lectures will present current science, ongoing clinical trials and future research directions including many recent advances in multi-disciplinary management approaches to patients with early stage, high risk, and metastatic disease. Interactive discussions with experts in the field will enhance the learning experience.

Learning Objectives

Kidney Cancer

- Discuss current status of adjuvant therapy for patients with high risk kidney cancer
- Analyze treatment options for second line therapy for VEGFR TKI resistance kidney cancer
- Evaluate the role of immune therapy alone and in combination for patients with kidney cancer
- Evaluate the role of surgery in the management of patients with all stages of kidney cancer
- Analyze current unresolved clinical management issues and clinical research opportunities

Bladder Cancer

- Describe the evaluation and management of recurrent non-muscle invasive bladder cancer
- Evaluate molecular advances in urothelial carcinoma that support personalized bladder cancer management strategies
- Describe the evolution of immunotherapy in the treatment of advanced urothelial cancer
- Utilize appropriate multidisciplinary adjuvant therapy approaches for muscle invasive bladder cancer
- Analyze critical clinical questions in urothelial carcinoma that are being addressed by clinical research

Target Audience

This conference is intended for urologists, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, nurses, advanced practice clinicians, residents, fellows and healthcare practitioners interested in the biology and management of kidney and bladder cancers.
