Masters Course in Cadaver Injectables

The American Academy of Aesthetic Medicine is proud to offer this highly relevant, practical and hands-on advanced facial anatomy cadaver-training course conducted by Dr. Alejandro Espallat. Dr. Espallat is a renowned and experienced board-certified aesthetic medicine laser and ophthalmic surgeon.

The program provides a combination of didactic presentations in the morning; the afternoon will include extensive demonstrations and hands-on of injection landmarks for facial rejuvenation on cadaver heads. The hands-on session will allow the student physician to identify, feel, touch, and inject the muscles relevant to the aesthetic correction of rhytides with neuromodulators, as well as to identify, visualize, touch, inject, and correct the folds usually treated during aesthetic rejuvenation of the face with dermal fillers.

Throughout the course, participants will gain a thorough understanding of various safety injection techniques by learning the anatomy of the face and associated structures, as well as the prevention and management of possible aesthetic treatment complications.

Course Objectives:

- In-depth training on the latest techniques and skills in minimally invasive facial aesthetic rejuvenation with the use of neuromodulators and hyaluronic based dermal fillers.
- Review the important anatomic landmarks involved during minimally invasive rejuvenation of the upper and lower face.
- Direct demonstration of the various fat pad compartments, skin layers, and blood supply to to visualize where injectables should be placed to achieve outstanding results, while preventing potential complications.
- Identify, feel, touch, and inject the muscles relevant to the aesthetic correction of rhytides with neuromodulators and also the folds usually treated during aesthetic rejuvenation of the face with dermal fillers.
- Learn how to prevent and manage common and not so common possible complications from aesthetic injections and how to develop an "Aesthetic Crash Cart".
