Dear Fellow SSOMS Members:

It is my great pleasure to invite you to the Southeastern Society of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeons, our 71st annual meeting, which will be held May 12-16, 2021 at the Ritz-Carlton in Amelia Island, FL. We will keep our eye on the pandemic but for now, we plan to host a face-to-face meeting and look forward to seeing you there.

Located in northeastern Florida, Amelia Island offers an unspoiled setting for relaxing and rewarding getaways. Amelia Island is 13 miles long and two miles wide, with preserved park lands at its northern and southern tips, making up nearly 10 percent of the entire island! Surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean, Intracoastal Waterway, stong-currented Nassau Sound and one of the East's largest and deepest inlets - Cumberland Sound - Amelia Island is edged with natural Appalachian quartz beaches and framed by sand dunes as tall as 40 feet.

Our scientific sessions will be led by Dr Eric Carlson of the University of Tennessee Medical Center and Dr David Powers from Duke University School of Medicine. Their topics will be osteonecrosis, odontogenic cysts & tumors, patient specific implants and major reconstructive surgery and should give us plenty of information to immediately utilize in our practices.

I look forward to finally seeing you all again—Amelia Island awaits!

Sincerely yours,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Robert C Pfeffe". The signature is fluid and cursive.

Bob Pfeffe, DMD

SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

Medication Related Osteonecrosis of the Jaws: Update 2021 Odontogenic Cysts and Tumors - Contemporary Surgical Management

Eric Carlson, DMD, MD, EdM, FACS

Professor and Chair
Residency Program Chair
Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery
University of Tennessee Graduate School of Medicine
Knoxville, TN

Dr. Carlson's clinical focus is benign and malignant tumors of the oral cavity, head, and neck, salivary gland surgery, and reconstructive Surgery. His research focus includes translational research initiatives focus on the identification of human papillomavirus (HPV) in oral and oropharyngeal cancer and the preoperative staging of head and neck cancer with positron emission tomography/computed tomography (PET/CT) and a variety of tracers. The ability to detect a specific carcinogen and proper staging of these cancers is of important prognostic value.

Additionally, Dr. Carlson has been engaged in elucidating the relationship between adult learning theory and professional development of faculty, a relatively new concept in academic medical centers. To this end, his work centers on technical and adaptive challenges in the development of faculty. At the core of adaptive challenges is the recognition that mindsets form the basis for faculty development and higher orders of consciousness are realized when growth mindsets are assumed by faculty members. Retention of productive faculty and effective teaching of residents are the end results.

Dr. Carlson obtained his DMD from University of Pennsylvania, 1985; attended medical school at the University of Miami, 2000; and concluded his residency in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh, PA, 1989 and general surgery at the University of Tennessee Graduate School of Medicine, 2003. His fellowship included tumor and reconstructive surgery, Jackson Memorial Hospital/University of Miami School of Medicine, Miami, FL, 1990.

Patient Specific Implants in Reconstructive Surgery; Ballistic Injury & Penetrating Neck Trauma

David Powers, DMD, MD

Director, Craniomaxillofacial Trauma and Reconstructive Surgery Fellowship
Associate Professor of Surgery
Duke University School of Medicine
Durham, NC

Dr. Powers currently serves as an Associate Professor of Surgery, and Director of the Craniomaxillofacial Trauma Program, at Duke University Medical Center. Additionally, he is the Fellowship Director for the Craniomaxillofacial Trauma and Reconstructive Surgery fellowship within the Department of Surgery. His surgical experience in facial trauma was attained during a military career highlighted by the acute management of ballistic and other injuries of warfare, as well as performing secondary and tertiary facial reconstructive surgery during various staff assignments at Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center, the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center - Bethesda and the R Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore, Maryland. He lectures and has published extensively on the management of ballistic and high-energy transfer injuries to the craniomaxillofacial skeleton, comprehensive reconstruction techniques for facial trauma, and the use of computer-aided surgical planning and patient-specific implants for anatomic rehabilitation after catastrophic craniomaxillofacial injuries.

The scientific sessions have been approved for 7.5 CE credit hours.

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Warren Arrasmith, DDS

Associate Professor
Clinic Director, Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery
University of Alabama at Birmingham School of Dentistry
Birmingham, AL

Dr. Warren Arrasmith, a native of Birmingham, Alabama, completed his undergraduate and dental education at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, AL. He received his DMD with honors and was elected to Omicron Kappa Upsilon (OKU) National Dental Honor Society. Following graduation, he served in the United States Air Force as a General Dental Officer at Clark Air Base during the Vietnam War. Upon completing his tour of duty, he attended the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB), Birmingham, AL where he completed his residency in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. He was fortunate to have been mentored by some of the best professors in the specialty including Dr. Charles "Scotty" McCallum, Dr. Charles Alling, and Dr. Victor Matukas.

Dr. Arrasmith spent 38 years in private practice in Birmingham, AL. During that time, he served as the Chief of the Oral and Maxillofacial section at Baptist Medical Center Princeton and University of Alabama at Birmingham Medical West Hospitals. He also served on numerous hospital and operating room committees and participated in establishing hospital guidelines for Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery privileges. In the late 1990's, he joined the Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at the University Of Alabama School Of Dentistry as a part-time Adjunct Professor and in 2011 transitioned to a full-time Associate Professor position.

Dr. Arrasmith currently holds the Thomas W. Jones Endowed Professorship and recently received the UAB President's Award for Excellence in Teaching. He serves as the Clinical Director of the Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery Clinic and he is actively involved in the undergraduate dental education where he is the course master for several courses and co-course master for the Dental Hygienist Local Anesthesia Course. He serves on various School of Dentistry committees and is currently serving as Chair of the Faculty and Faculty Council and Chair of several Faculty Search Committees. He was previously the Chair of the Dean's Leadership Council and is past President of the OKU National Dental Honor Society.

Dr. Arrasmith is also active in local, state, and national professional organizations. He is a past president of the Alabama Society of OMS, the Southeastern Society of OMS, and a delegate to the Alabama Dental Association and American Association of OMS. He currently serves as Recorder for the House of Delegates. He is also past president of the McCallum Alumni Association and he currently serves on the Executive Committee. He has served as an examiner for the State Board of Dentistry for office anesthesia evaluations. He is also active in local politics and attends AAOMS Day on the Hill annually.

Dr. Arrasmith was married for 52 years to Anne Arrasmith, who passed away 2 years ago. They have one daughter, Tyndall (Zachery), and two grandchildren, Ella and Waylon. He enjoys traveling, visiting family, reading, and spending time at his lake house in his spare time.

ACTIVITIES

WHITE OAK RESERVE

Daytime Tour | May 13 or 14, 2021

Come face to face with exotic animals on White Oak's Conservation tour. Founded in 1982, White Oak is part of the Walter Conservation and spans over 17,000 acres in Northeastern Florida. It has been long dedicated to the conservation and care of endangered and threatened species, including rhinoceros, okapi, bongos, zebras, condors, dama gazelles, and cheetahs. The tours will be lead by wildlife experts who introduce guests to the conservation program, facilities, and more than 30 species of animals that call White Oak home. Guests will ride on open-air vans or trolleys and explore the sites and sounds of each individual natural habitat.
