

IECC

5th Annual International Emergency Care Conference 7 & 8 September 2016

What's in the emergency care package?
The patient, the system, the strategy.
How to make a difference when resources are limited.

The 2016 program has been designed to provide delegates with practical tools and crucial strategies to contribute to international emergency care projects.

International Emergency Care Conference (IECC) is a meeting of health care professionals interested in making a meaningful contribution to emergency health services in countries at extreme levels of development.

The Conference brings together doctors, nurses, paramedics, health administrators and healthcare students who are passionate about improving emergency health care in countries where health services can be difficult to access.

PROGRAM
7 September 2016	Pre-conference Workshop One day interactive workshop to improve the knowledge and skills of individuals looking to engage in emergency care capacity development activities.
8 September 2016	International Emergency Care Conference One day symposium exploring how to make a difference when resources are limited. Keynote speakers: Professor Junaid Razzak , Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore A/Professor Andi Tenner , University of California, San Francisco

For more information please visit the IECC web site or email etc@alfred.org.au.

In addition to the above, The Alfred Emergency & Trauma Centre will hold a half-day session exploring current evidence and contentious issues in Emergency Resuscitation on September 9. Whilst not part of the IECC program, this event may be of interest to emergency medical and nursing staff. More information <https://alfredetc-professional-development.cvent.com/Resus2016>.
